Germany is THE most popular study abroad destination for Engineering students. Students are also pursuing in increasing numbers MA degrees in Engineering (tuition-free). They are also successfully finding employment in the field of Engineering in Germany. For these reasons, the Department of Germanic Studies and the School of Engineering at UMD have partnered up to create a unique program specifically designed for Engineering students.

Come meet former and current GERM-ENGR peers; hear them share their experiences and successes abroad; interact with faculty in the programs; and receive information on how you can participate in this program.
